Roleplaying a Red Talon character is certainly an extremely arduous task. The book "Ways of the Wolf" was a huge step helping how to think like a lupus garou, but the Red Talons have an extra challenge - they are almost all lupus, and no homid at all fills the ranks of this tribe. I always thought that it was exceedingly difficult to include a Talon in a regular multi-tribal and multi-breed pack, and after I've read this wonderful tribebook I must admit that my first impression was correct. This tribe is different from the others, they aren't humans that can change into wolves (even their human forms are Neanderthalistic) - they're wolves. They have always been wolves. They have no sympathy at all for the humans - those apes are just prey that became too strong and influenced by the weaver and the wyrm, so they must be culled. Trying to insert a Red Talon in a regular pack will be very difficult, because he/she will always try to kill enemies (and all soft pink humans are enemies) whenever possible. On the other hand, a pack of Red Talons will give you a fascinating and different campaign! So, go ahead and read this tribebook, understand the perspective of the lupus and free your inner wolf. You're already raging, let the hunt begin. The author of the book also wrote the comic "A wolf in the Blood" which you can read at the beginning of the tribebook; this comic is competently drawn by Brian O'Connel. In this short story a red talon pack finds the skinned corpses of hunted wolves, they quickly find a Pentex convoy and the hunters become the hunted.
